Selfies are here to stay—so why hasn't anyone come up with a smartphone camera that delivers a perfect-looking picture every time? I mean, we live in a world where our phones can instantly download music, track how many steps we take every day, and pretty much give us any nugget of information we could ever ask for—yet most of our devices still deliver sub-par pics. Luckily, technology has given us some of the best photo editing apps so we can feel like pros without spending a lot of money or time.

The best selfie apps help us look like we've photographed ourselves always in the best lighting, blurs our imperfections, and can even refresh our face the morning after a late night of partying.

If you're on the hunt for a great selfie editor app, you're not alone—according to a survey by TruePic in May 2017, 64 percent of the adults polled admitted to editing their pics prior to posting them. Five percent of them admitted to eliminating and/or modifying problem areas such as blemishes, dark circles, red eyes, while 15 percent edited their pics to feel better about themselves.

That said, here's a complete guide to the best ones.

Pro-level editing tools
e.g. Curves, White Balance and RAW editing

This Google-sponsored app brings a full-scale editing suite to your fingertips, with 29 tools and filters as well as the ability to open JPGs and raw files. Use this to take your selfies or vacation posts to the next level.

Photo: VSCO.

VSCO

Who doesn't use VSCO by now? If you aren't, you'll quickly become obsessed. This free app does more than edit your pics; you can also take pics directly in VSCO, edit video and even emulate film with its advanced presets. You can also upgrade to the VSCO X membership experience for $19.99/year to unlock even more editing tools.

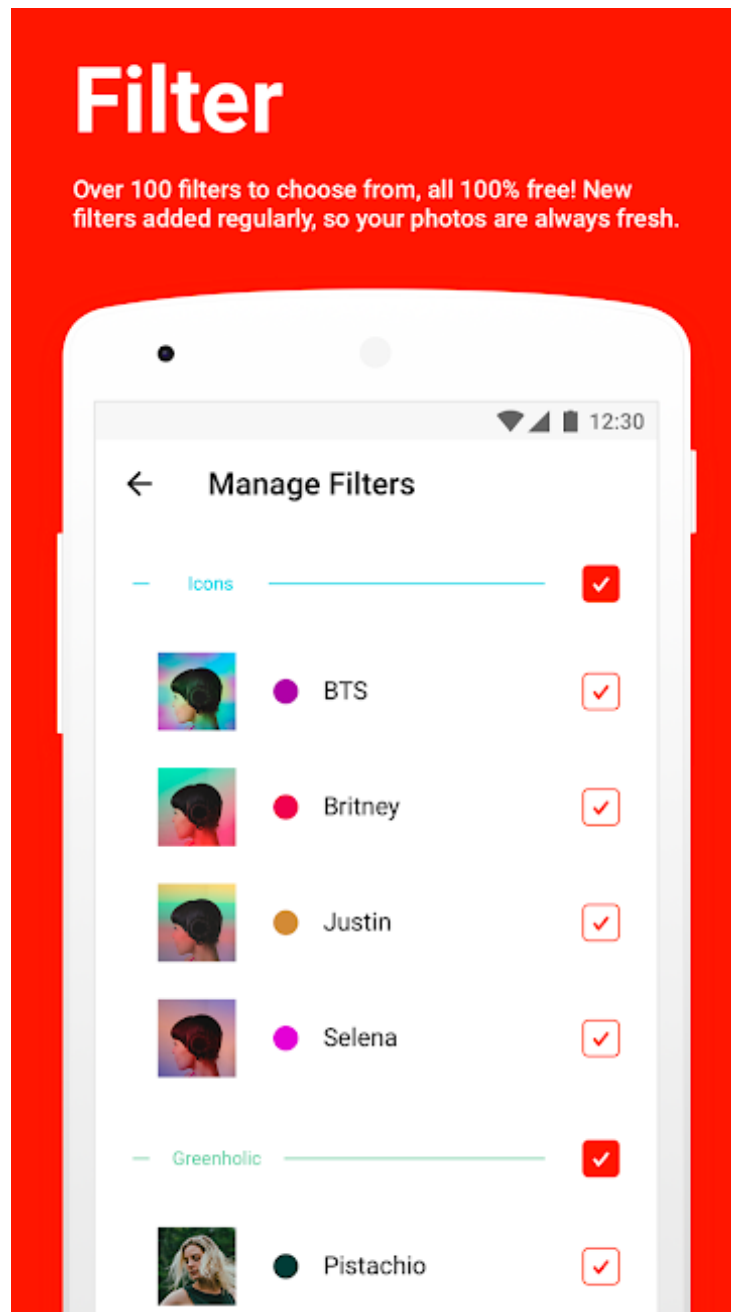

Photo: Retrica.

Retrica

Want more filters? You got it with Retrica, which has over 100 filters to choose from. Plus, you can see them in real time before you even take your selfie. This free app also captures live video and can create GIFs, has collage options, and has plenty of fun stickers.

Photo Wonder

This slick free app— which currently has over 100 million users in 218 countries—pretty much does it all. The range of tools are plentiful, and includes “slimify,” “blemish fix,” and “make-up.” Plus, there’s a cool collage function, and you can select various backgrounds and frames. It’s also worth noting that it gets excellent reviews on iTunes.

Photo: Facetune.

Facetune

This app helps you fake perfect skin: smooth creases and wrinkles, even out skin tone, erase zits, create an overall more flattering visage with a few simple swipes. It also offers a reshape feature that allows you to make yourself look taller and slimmer, if you're into that sort of thing. Like most good things, perfection comes at a cost—this app clocks in at $3.99.

Photo: Visage.

Visage

After uploading your selfie, this free app will instantly apply skin makeup, eye makeup, teeth whitening, shine removal, and smooth out your wrinkles—all in about 10 seconds. The final result might appear a bit too airbrushed and doll-like for some, but your skin will never look smoother.

CreamCam

CreamCam

Another skin-perfecting app, CreamCam—which is free—uses swipe functions to tweak imperfections like pimples, shine, flyaway hairs, uneven skin tone and shine. The app has two editing features: brightness and blur, both of which can be customized on a sliding scale of zero to 100 percent.

YouCam Perfect

This free app promises to brighten tired eyes, remove blemishes, smooth wrinkles, and slim your face for perfect selfies with just one-touch.

Photo: AirBrush.

AirBrush

AirBrush is a free app that'll help give you flawless-looking skin, remove coffee stains, adjust the angle at which the photo was taken (so you can show off your best side), and even add a few inches to your height. Technology is great, isn't it?

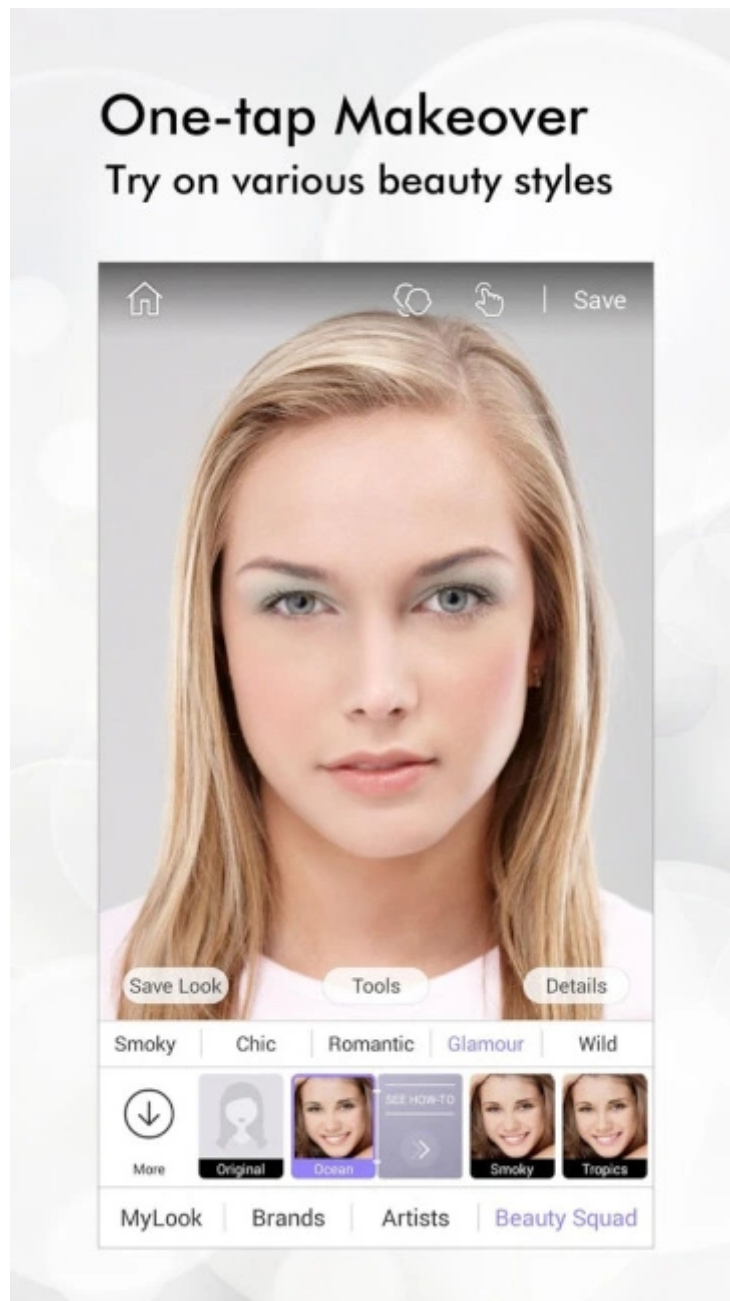

Photo: Perfect365.

Perfect365

Perfect365 is a free app that allows you to apply makeup, enhance your skin and eyebrow color, and whiten your teeth with separate tools. Naturally, after gussying up your selfies, the app lets you post the results to your social channels.

Whoa—Selena Gomez’s Hair Is the Longest It’s Even Been

by ELIZABETH DENTON

Photo: SHUTTERSTOCK.

While everyone and their mother is talking about Selena Gomez’s new song “Lose You To Love Me” and it possibly being about ex Justin Bieber (and then, um, Hailey Bieber’s possible message to Gomez), all I can think about is Gomez’s new long hair. She stepped out in Los Angeles today looking gorgeous and confident with waist-length waves that look natural and fresh. The past few years, Gomez has stayed in the lob club with what feels like the rest of Hollywood but in honor of her new song, she’s making a change.

flirty, short ‘do. I’ve gone on record to say her bob haircut is my favorite of all Gomez’s looks but there’s something about these new photos that show she's really feeling herself And confidence goes a long way.

Gomez also has long wavy hair in her new video for "Lose You To Love Me." The song is making waves (no pun intended) for its lyrics that may or may not be able Justin Bieber. "Thank you all for standing by my side through the highs and lows," she wrote on Instagram. "I couldn't do it without you all and I can't wait to start my next adventure with you. ❤️ Lose You To Love Me is out now."

We don't know if Gomez will keep the length or go back to her trendy bob but for now, we're feeling 2019 Selena. Head over to Just Jared to see the photos.
